

Carly Goldsmith

Executive Coach & Facilitator – Boston

Carly brings over two decades of human resource and business experience to work for her clients. As a coach, she partners with senior and emerging leaders to leverage their strengths to maximize personal engagement and impact created in their roles. Compassionate and intuitive by nature, Carly's facilitation style is often described as engaging, insightful, and empowering.

For more than 16 years, Carly has coached dozens of leaders and mid-career professionals to develop essential skills for success and take ownership of their career development. In addition to her coaching, she has facilitated hundreds of in-person and virtual workshops on management and leadership development skills, facilitation skills, coaching skills, and career development. Most recently, Carly has worked with leaders and professionals at Deloitte, Eaton Vance, Amazon Robotics, STAG, The Broad Institute, Corcoran Jennison, Catalant, and Collette. In addition, she supports women leaders in Executive Education programs at Bentley University.

Prior to launching her business, Carly worked at Deloitte in a variety of human resource roles advising and supporting leaders of the firm to acquire top talent, manage employee relations, and develop the leadership competencies of their staff. As part of Deloitte's innovative internal coaching team, Carly coached individuals, groups, and teams at all levels. She also held human resource and recruiting positions at New York Newsday.

Carly holds a BA in Psychology from Boston University. She completed her professional coaching certifications with Coach U and Team Coaching International. She earned her professional certified coach (PCC) designation through the International Coach Federation. She is certified in a variety of key assessments including The Hogan, The Leadership Versatility Index 360, MBTI, Lominger Leadership Architect, VOICES 360, EQi, and Team Diagnostics.

Carly resides in Boston and enjoys reaping as much as she can out of her urban edible garden, deepening her mindfulness and meditation practice, traveling, and spending time with her two children and husband.