

Michèle Barnett Berg

Executive Coach & Facilitator – Boston

Michèle has more than two decades of international human capital consulting experience including executive coaching, leadership development, team building, facilitation, change management, onboarding, and talent assessment. She has worked with a wide range of organizations in size and industry, startups to Fortune 50, both in the private and public sector as well as with global academic and executive education institutions.

Michèle has worked and lived in 4 countries and coached leaders from more than 80 nationalities. She especially enjoys facilitating teams as they learn behaviors that propel them towards innovation, cross-functional collaboration, and entrepreneurial mindsets. She has partnered with leaders at Aon, Boeing, Citi, Danone, Ericsson, Google, Red Hat/IBM, Sanofi, and Verizon.

She received her professional coaching certification from the NeuroLeadership Institute and uses a variety of assessments including the Predictive Index, the MBTI, and the TKI to enhance self-awareness and build leadership capacity. She's also worked with a variety of 360-degree feedback assessments including the Leadership Versatility Index.

Michèle has designed leadership development programs in both academic and corporate environments and brings a keen understanding of adult learning needs. While living in Switzerland, Michèle joined IMD as a coach for their Global MBA program and as a business case writer creating executive education materials focused on leadership, innovation, and governance. She has consulted to Hong Kong University of Science and Technology and with Singapore Management University. While living in Sweden, she joined the Stockholm School of Economics, where she is currently a Senior Coach/Faculty Member for their Executive MBA Leadershiplive Program, a program she co-created in 2014. In Boston, she works with global executives at MIT's Sloan School of Management as a leadership coach for individuals and teams, and serves as a mentor and judge for MIT's $100K Entrepreneurship program.

Early in her career, Michèle was an executive search consultant with Korn/Ferry International in San Francisco where she conducted c-suite searches in venture capital, advanced technology, and professional services. She also worked for two start-ups in fintech and software and then served as Senior Advisor on Human Capital to the Assistant Secretary/Chief Financial Officer at the U.S. Department of State under Secretary Colin Powell.

Michèle completed a Bachelor of Arts in Psychology at the University of California, Santa Cruz. She serves on the Board of Directors of the Arts & Business Council of Greater Boston as Co-chair of the Governance committee and is an active member of The Junior League of Boston. She enjoys spending time with family, running marathons, visiting art museums, and angel investing. Michèle is first generation American and a dual French national.
